Excellence in Pain Education

Since 2017, our trajectory has significantly changed due to the foresight and leadership of our Past Presidents, our current President, Dr. Ivonne Hernandez and President-Elect, Janice Rae. Their collective dedication, commitment and vision for the PSA has allowed it to grow from a single delivery annual conference to a robust resource of educational events for healthcare providers and people with lived experiences. Strategic planning to achieve this outcome is because of:

- expanding our audience locally and nationally.
- offering a variety of educational opportunities in different formats
- inviting presenters from across the world to share their knowledge and expertise.
- Ensuring topics are inclusive and relevant, while always grounded in best practice.
- acting as a conduit to encourage networking and linkages amongst healthcare providers.

Marketing Campaigns

Our comprehensive marketing campaigns have been the fuel that feeds our goal to broaden our outreach and entice people to learn about pain management.

- Email distribution strings of over 7000 members locally, nationally, and internationally
- Free membership and a commitment to maintain reasonable conference fees to entice people to attend.
- Strong social media outreach.
- Access to healthcare providers within large public and private healthcare organizations.
- Partnerships with Physician Associations, patient advocacy groups and other pain organizations.

Engaging Participants and Your Return on Investment (ROI)

Creating innovative ways to increase your engagement and ROI is very important to us whether you are interacting with a healthcare provider (HCP) or a person with lived experience (PWLE)*. To achieve a positive outcome, we use key strategies such as conference passports, exhibits in prime locations, verbal recognition, and the ability to participate in a preconference workshop of sponsored lunch.

Your Participation at our 2024 Conference

This event gathers physicians, physician specialists, and allied healthcare professionals to learn from presenters who are selected based on their knowledge, experience, and merit.

As one of our exhibitors, you will have opportunities to engage and network with our participants and share research updates and information about your products and services. Most importantly, your commitment and support will achieve better patient outcomes by empowering healthcare providers and enhancing their clinical practice for people living with pain.
